

Tableware Matching Services

If you have had the misfortune to lose or break a piece from a dinner or tea service and the design has now been discontinued, it is often possible to find a replacement through one of the companies listed below.

In general they will only be able to trace replacements for services made after the First World War, they will usually need a photograph of your set, pattern name and any numbers from the back.

Please note – This is a list of known companies, it is not a recommendation.
